

$100,000 POOL FOR SOCIETY WOMAN IN WHISKEY RING

Purpose to Force Out Dry Enforcement Agents, It Is Said
—Three Arrests.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—That a "pool" of $100,000 was raised here to go to Washington society women, influential in politics, for use in suppressing ambitious dry enforcement agents and replacing them with men more susceptible to reason, was believed here today as a result of "tapping" telephone wires of members of the whiskey ring. This is said to have disclosed a plan to "get" Captain Hubert Howard, state prohibition chief. Howard resigned a few months ago, but the "ring" plan to name a certain politician as his successor failed.

Three men have been arrested here in the last twenty-four hours, police officials said today, on complaint of Andrew Pappas, a restaurant owner, who charged that he had been swindled out of large sums of money through the alleged "ring."

The men arrested are Fred Leach, former special agent for the American Railway Express Company; Joseph Schilling, alleged agent of the "ring," and Thomas Kerpis, a saloon-keeper.

Pappas declared he would have the support of many other restaurant owners and saloonkeepers who, he said, had lost upwards of $100,000 by buying, through the "ring," for whiskey which never was delivered.

The Federal Grand Jury today continued its investigation of the "ring" after having heard the testimony yesterday of Walter Sadler, a New York broker, who confessed, it was said, to participation in the whiskey running.

LAWYER STRICKEN ARGUING A CASE

William Adams Robinson, one of the most prominent criminal lawyers in Brooklyn, was stricken with cerebral hemorrhage while arguing a case before Justice Callaghan in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, this morning.

He was pleading in behalf of four sons of Dominick Salamone, who were arrested for alleged thefts from Salamone's truck barns of goods valued at $100,000. Justice Callaghan interrupted his argument to ask a question and while pausing to frame a reply the attorney suddenly threw up his hands and fell forward on the floor.

Very Simple—But
"Just a simple luncheon for the children. It's so hard to get them what they should eat in a restaurant," she said. So we gave 'em chicken home-style and a creamy, golden brown custard. Very simple, but — I'm always going to bring them here!"
